Seventieth Birthday Brings Reward With Pension After Long Years of Service

(By Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—San Francisco recently changed its civil service law so that John McLaren, famed landscape expert and creator of the city's "Eden," the beautiful Golden Gate park, would not have to retire when he became 70 years of age. In addition, his employees, the board of supervisors, voted him a seventieth birthday present of a 50 per cent increase in salary.

Since 1887, soon after McLaren came here from Scotland, he has been park superintendent, and has converted what once was a dreary stretch of sand dunes into an alluring wilderness, noted throughout the world for its size and beauty. For years he and his wife have lived in a cozy lodge deep in a park recess.

Until changed, the law said that McLaren would have to go on the pension list and give up his lodge when he became 70. The supervisors changed the law to read that employees receiving over $500 per month are exempt from retirement provisions and to put McLaren within the law, increased his salary from $500 to $725.

McLaren handled the big task of landscaping the grounds of the Panama Pacific exposition here in 1915 and in odd moments of recent years he wrote a book, "Gardening in California," which has become a standard textbook.

When McLaren first came to the park there were no lakes, few roads, few trees and scores of acres of sand dunes. He has 20 men on the payroll and thought if he could have 100 everything would be well. Now there are some 300. McLaren knows every tree, shrub

Scientific Men of Old World are Slow to Realize Importance of Discovery

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, June 26.—British government officials are giving close study to American methods of wireless broadcasting and gradually are adopting some of them. While the wireless telephone is not as popular in England as in the United States, due largely to government licensing and control, the people are beginning to show intense interest in it. Some of the big London department stores have established wireless departments and are selling receiving sets for as low as $10. Radio terminals are rigged up on their roofs and crowds of shoppers are entertained each day with wireless and flower in the big park by all its names. Practically every growing thing in the big reservation was placed where it is by his personal direction. He located the bridges, waterfalls, miniature canyons, lakes and boulevards. He made the park what it is and San Francisco is satisfied.

Now, at 70 years, McLaren is planning a few additions to the big park, giving him more acres to plant.

less concerts, speeches and weather reports. Direct contact with Arlington and other American stations is easily established.

Nothing written on the subject of wireless broadcasting has brought it home to England so vividly as a recent New York dispatch to the London Times. "In the United States," says the correspondent, "there are already half a million home made receiving sets for listening in and a million manufactured sets have been sold."

"By the purchase of the simple and inexpensive receiving sets as used in America," continues the writer, "there is no village in the British Isles so poor or unfurnished that it will not be able to afford, or find a patron to give, the necessary receiving instrument. The villager and every remote farm house should receive every night as good singing, as good opera, as good dance music, as good a lecture, or as good a survey of the news as any millionaire in London can buy."

In answer to a published statement that wireless broadcasting of concerts would hurt the musical and theatrical industries, Louis Sterling, president of a large American phonograph company, has said that in the march of science there never yet was a great invention that had not been of incalculable benefit both to the industry with which it was immediately concerned and to kindred industries.

"When graphophones were invented," said Mr. Sterling, "people said they would kill pianos; the cinema was fully expected to give the quinine to the legitimate stage; vaudeville was at first looked upon as the death dance of musical comedy."
